

SENATORS TO CHOOSE

Forecast of the Twenty-Eight Approaching Contests.

PORTO RICO TARIFF VIEWS

By Lodge and Teller—Western Men in Washington.

(Special Correspondence of the Eagle.)

Washington, March 10.—There are twenty-eight senators to be elected after the election of the legislatures in many states this fall. There would be thirty, but Martin of Virginia and Gear of Iowa have already been elected in advance. Senator Shoup of Idaho is one of the twenty-eight. He is a straight Republican, and a desperate fight will be made on him by silver Republicans, Populists and Democrats, who will back Senator Fred Dubois. Senator Edgar Wolcott of Colorado has practically the same sort of fight, and his contest will be watched with great interest. There are signs of repentance among Colorado Republicans, however, so things may come the junior senator's way, after all. Senator Berry is now stumping Arkansas, making anti-expansion speeches, while his opponent for the Democratic nomination, Governor Jones, is talking expansion in all his meetings. The contest is a warm one. Speaking of this, brings to the front that if Governor Jones should be elected, Arkansas would have two senators by that patronymic, and it would be necessary to call the full name of the particular Jones, if the presiding officer desired to refer to one of them. In Alabama Senator Morgan and Governor Johnston are fighting it out, and Morgan has more than a chance to win. In fact, he practically has won already. He is for expansion and Johnston is against it. Governor McMillin of Tennessee will probably succeed Senator Turley, who has said he does not care to return. Mr. Caffery of Louisiana, who is out of line with his party on the money question, will also retire. Former Governor Morgan would like to succeed him. Senator McMillin of Michigan will have no opposition for re-election unless Governor Alger should get in the race. Lindsay of Kentucky will be succeeded by Joe Blackburn, who has been here before. Senator Sullivan of Mississippi will be succeeded by former Congressman and Governor McArthur, who will also find a senator of his own name from South Carolina. Senator Martin Butler, next to the youngest member of the senate, is having a fight in North Carolina. Butler is a Populist, and he hopes to come back through an arrangement with the Republicans, who have the bad habit of fusing with the Populists some of the time. The pathway of Senator Horace Odell of Texas is not strewn with roses these days. Joe Bailey, late leader of the minority of the house, is after him, with good chances of securing the senatorial throne. The irrepressible "Pitchfork" Tillman of South Carolina seems to have a clutch of his seat, and will doubtless succeed himself. One of the interesting fights is that between Senator Calhoun, who will have been in the senate eighteen years in 1901, and Governor Tanner. The fight is a most bitter one, and it is being closely watched by the Democrats. Former Vice President Adlai Stevenson has hopes, in case of "Democratic" success, of becoming senator of West Virginia. He has no trouble in his party, but the legislative districts are close, and the result can scarcely be foretold. Senator Chandler of New Hampshire has had three successive terms, and if his people want him for another, he is willing. The same is true with Senator Frye of Maine, the longest president of the senate, and with the president-elect, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, who has been about the administration immovably, all because it cannot agree with him on the Philippine policy, but as he has been here a generation, and has a firm hold on the people of his state, no attempt probably will be made to dislodge him. In Nebraska a contest situation presents itself. Mr. Allen was in the senate six years, from 1893 to 1899. He was then succeeded by Hayward, who died in a few months, and Allen was appointed by the Populist governor. Thurston, Republican, is the other senator. He will retire voluntarily, and as the state is close, the next legislature might elect two opposition senators, and in that event there will be an effort to secure one Democratic and one Populist senator. Bryan, if defeated for the presidency, and in the event of a fusion legislature undoubtedly will come to the senate. Allen, then, would be the Populist, and succeed himself. In the event of Republican success, Assistant Secretary of War George D. Goethals, a former congressman, his ambition, and there are others. Bacon of Georgia, Knute Nelson of Minnesota, Sewall of New Jersey and Warren of Wyoming will probably have no the slightest opposition. Wetmore of Rhode Island is in the same line. Senator Carter of Montana can succeed himself if the state goes Republican, and that depends somewhat on the outcome of the Clark investigation. McFried of Oregon will come back if the silver and anti-Mitchell forces do not do him up. Both are strong, but as McFried is a straight Republican, and things are prosperous on the coast, he ought to win. Pettigrew, the ranching, hunting, dust-licking, late Republican of South Dakota, who always is seen things who is off on silver and expansion and everything—will have more trouble than a metropolitan policeman. He can scarcely have any hope of coming back, for his state has been giving fight ever since 1895, and when the time comes to elect a successor to Pettigrew, surely ought to be depended on to send a good, first-class Republican. This excludes the like-all save Kansas. Mr. Baker has served nearly a term, and is well-liked here. He has a good chairmanship and better assignments on other committees. Opposing him, of course, is L. B. Burton, a talented and bright man. But the people of Kansas have not yet come to the time to settle this fight.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, one of the ablest men in congress, says of the Porto Rico tariff bill: "The house has had the courage and wisdom to legislate for Porto Rico in a statesmanlike manner and has correctly satisfied the constitutional question. I have no doubt that a decisive majority of the senate will agree with it."

I have no doubt that a decisive majority of the senate will agree with it."

free trade for the island at this time on the ground of sympathy with the inhabitants have not looked into the case enough to see that what they propose is not a relief to the people in the way of taxation, but an increased and heavy burden. The truth is that we have never treated any people who came under our flag with such generosity and consideration as we show in the proposed legislation for Porto Rico. The citizens of Arizona or New Mexico pay the duties on every imported article which he consumes, and all internal revenue taxes, and what he pays goes into the treasury of the United States, while he is left to tax himself in addition for all the expenses of the territorial government. In the case of Porto Rico every dollar of taxation raised by the United States directly or indirectly from the island or its products is paid into the island treasury. The United States under this bill will not take one cent of revenue from the island of Porto Rico, while it taxes the inhabitants of all the other territories just as it taxes the inhabitants of the states. It is difficult to see how a more liberal and generous arrangement could be devised, and I am heartily in favor of it because I want to show to Porto Rico the utmost liberality and generosity possible."

Senator Teller is unequivocally for the Porto Rican tariff bill. This is shown by his recent utterances in the senate. His latest is as follows: "Mr. President, I desire to discuss very briefly the conference report on the financial bill, but before proceeding on that measure I wish to make a correction in the Record. Yesterday when speaking on the Porto Rican bill I said: 'I am one of those who believe that commerce has very large powers in dealing with these new possessions. I have no hold from the beginning.' I said: 'I am not disposed to change my mind.' The Record makes me say that I am disposed to change my mind. I do not think there is any particular discredit in a man's changing his mind, but I should feel on this occasion that it would be very remarkable if I should change my mind on it."

"Mr. President, in 1899 I spent a good part of the summer discussing political questions, and this was one of those then discussed. We, as Republicans, supporters of Mr. Lincoln, claimed that the constitution did not go into the territories. That was Mr. Lincoln's position. That was everybody's position in those days except those who wanted to force slavery into the territories. Now, from that time to this I have had very positive views on that subject, and in the last two years I have given a great deal of care and attention to it. I do not want to go down in history as having changed my mind, and therefore I make this correction."

What Mr. Teller says of Lincoln's position is important since Mr. Bailey of Texas, in closing for the Democrats in the recent debate, declared that those who stood with him stood with Lincoln.

Pinny L. Soper, United States district attorney for Indian Territory, accompanied by Mr. Soper, spent several days here this week. Mr. Soper was here on legal and political business.

M. A. Low, general western counsel for the Rock Island road, has been in Washington for a week. Mr. Low is here on business, and is also interested in legislation.

Pedro Peres, the delegate from New Mexico, is almost as busy a man as Delegate Flynn. He is on the committee of public lands and territories, and this work keeps him very busy. Speaking of Mr. Peres reminds me of his explanation that he happened to be away over in the "Cherokee Strip," as the little bunch of senators on the Democratic side where a number of Republicans sit, is called. When the drawing of seats occurred Mr. Peres was lucky. He drew a seat next to General Green, which was very desirable. Colonel Hepburn of Iowa, a veteran of the battle of Gettysburg, got into the "strip." Mr. Peres traded with him and took the "strip" seat himself. His modest explanation is that Hepburn was a leader and he felt sorry for his being in such a poor place. He himself, he says, being a mere delegate and of no account, could well afford to take the poor seat. But Mr. Peres is mistaken about his own worth. He really has an excellent standing, and is a sharp, clever fellow.

United States Marshal W. E. Sterne and Mrs. Sterne were in the city the latter part of the week.

Jack Fritz, the Topeka Capital correspondent, is working day and night for the Shulkin edition of his paper. He is preparing a lot of stuff in an endeavor to prove that there is really something good in congress, after all, in keeping with the moral tone of his paper that overtook him. He is not having such a hard time as some people might think, for he has dug up all sorts of good things that congress has done. As Fritz remarks, "This is a good time for a fellow who gets his name signed to stuff to get in. Just think of having stuff you write read and preserved by several hundred thousand people." Fritz's stuff is bound to be readable, and will certainly be worth preserving.

"Buffalo" Jones is working hard on his scheme to have several hundred thousand acres of land in Texas set aside for the purpose of preserving the genus bison. He is having quite a time with some of the members of the committee of public lands, but hopes to be successful.

Senator Baker and Mr. Bailey have both returned after their Kansas political vacation.

Mr. Miller has secured a pension of $25 per month for Mrs. Armstrong, wife of the late surgeon of the Thirty-second volunteers.
